Glasgow Food Tour

Bob Curry - 20th March 2019

Explore Glasgow on our sightseeing food walking tour

Get a taste for Scotland's biggest city on the Glasgow sightseeing food tour, available here at Food Drink Tour! Follow a local on a walking tour through Glasgow's best foodie spots and learn about the farming and culinary history of Scotland's largest city

If you're interested in our Glasgow food tour, you may also be interested in our equally delicious Edinburgh food tour — or perhaps you'd prefer to check out our range of UK food tours?

For the vegans out there, Glasgow is the vegan capital of Europe, with more vegan restaurants per person than any other European city. You may like to consider our Glasgow vegan food tour.

The Tastiest Glasgow City Walking Tour

If you're looking for the best food tour in Glasgow, look no further. You start your tour in Glasgow's famous Merchant City district, which is famous for its high-end cocktail bars and boutique stores. Learn about the city's history, about its rich merchants importing and selling products from all over the world.

No food tour of Glasgow would be complete without a good breakfast. In Rose & Grants, right in the heart of Glasgow's theatre district, taste traditional Scottish breakfast food, such as tattie scones, square sausage, and haggis (that's right — haggis is amazing with a fried egg on top!). From there, your local guide will take you through the centre of Glasgow, giving you a little background about the city. After this, we take a short journey to the West End of Glasgow, and to the origin of one of the UK's most famous dishes...

Glasgow Food: The Birthplace of Chicken Tikka Masala!

The foodie geeks out there will already know that Glasgow is the birthplace of the now world-famous dish: chicken tikka masala. The story goes that Pakistani chef and proprietor of the Shish Mahal Restaurant invented the dish when improvising with yoghurt and spices. Visit the birthplace of one of Britain's most famous dishes on this Glasgow food tour!
